

Dear Lovers,

It looks like the planned White House meeting is still set for Friday, April 2. The meeting was scheduled for 11:00 am, but it has now been changed to 2:00 pm. Bill & Carolyn McQuistrom, WWME Interfaith Board Facilitators, are coordinating the visit. The five of us are scheduled to meet in the office of the Special Assistant to the President for Domestic Policy. We do not know the White House agenda for the meeting, but we plan to present some information on What WWME is all about and our benefit to the married couples and clergy we serve.

We would ask each of you to pray for the success of this visit and that the Bush Administration will have a better appreciation of marriage and the work that is being done to help couples and priests become more active in their local parish communities.

We will let you know how it all comes together as soon as we are back home from Washington.

With much love,

Bob & Joy and Fr. Chuck
